Options for Connecting Honeywell Valves to SLATE Actuators

-When ordering a SLATE System or a SLATE Panel it is important to note that simply purchasing the actuator and the valve on your order will not provide a complete assembled solution.

-It is necessary to determined what valves will be used with what actuators and then insure you have determined and specified/ordered how the valves will actually mount to the actuator.

-Below is a list of Honeywell valves that are certified to work with SLATE actuators along with available mounting bracket kits. The valve, the actuator and the below kits must all be ordered seperately. However, these will not come assembled, meaning your OEM customer will need to mount the actuator to the valve via the kits noted below.

- For any SLATE Systems or SLATE Panels that uses the Maxon Smartlink DS actuator, you can order the Smartlink DS actuator configured and mounted to the available Maxon CV, M/A, and Ball Valve options. Your order will come completely assembled, no additional kits or assembly will be required.

- For the Eclipse butterfly or ball series of valves, there are no approved mounting kits or brackets available through Honeywell.

- If you have a unique valve or mounting application not covered in this memo, then you must work with the Engineered-to-Order (ETO) group and develop a special order which will add time and possibly additional cost to the order.
